WELCOME TO THE CIVIL SOCIETY FORUM 2024

On behalf of the NGO Committee for Social Development, welcome to the 2024 Civil Society Forum! Since 2006, this Forum has been a space for members of civil society to gather to learn, discuss, and strategize on the themes and deliberations of the UN Commission for Social Development (CSocD). We are optimistic about our current and future possibilities for collaboration with the United Nations and all Member States.

We, the NGO Committee on Social Development, are guided by the Copenhagen Declaration on Social Development principles and its Program for Action, along with the 2030 Agenda. As members of civil society, we know first-hand from the grassroots how fostering social inclusion, justice for all, social development, eradicating poverty, and promoting human dignity are necessary to advance in this midpoint the principles of the Copenhagen Declaration and the 2030 Agenda. This year's theme for the 62nd Commission for Social Development is particularly timely and important in this regard, especially as we look forward to the upcoming Summits at the UN.

At the midpoint of our way to the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development Goals, it is clear that the global community is failing to live up to the commitments it had made in 2015. Our social contract has been broken by extreme poverty and hunger, intersectional discriminations, profound gaps in social protection, persistent and devastating gender inequalities and disparities, economic instability, the climate crisis, the widening digital divide, global migration, the threat of nuclear war, the global cost of living crisis, the "care crisis".

This is the time to rethink our whole approach to society, to accept and implement social change and transformation. People want more responsive action to address these key challenges. Today, we need to envision a different kind of world. We need leadership to establish a renewed social contract integrating social, economic, environmental and political justice at both national and international levels. These are the pillars of international peace, prosperity and security.

We are pleased to share with you the NGO Committee on Social Development's Civil Society Declaration, which is included in different languages at the back of this program. Our Declaration not only addresses the issues related to CSocD62 but also highlights civil society's commitment to building upon the fundamental principles of the Copenhagen Declaration. In our call-to-action, we share tangible and cross-cutting recommendations that can make our vision of a world of true prosperity without poverty, inclusion, and justice for all a reality.

Thank you for your continued commitment to improving the lives of our planet's most vulnerable people and ensuring that "no one is left behind." On behalf of the NGO Committee for Social Development and the Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung New York office, thank you so much for attending. We hope that this Forum is informative, interesting, and impactful for you.

CIVIL SOCIETY FORUM PROGRAM

The Civil Society Forum has been planned by the NGO Committee on Social Development in joint sponsorship with the Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung, New York Office and the Division for Inclusive Social Development of the United Nations Department of Economic and Social Affairs. This Forum has been organized for Civil Society participants to engage with various experts with different perspectives on the priority theme of the 62nd session of the UN Commission for Social Development: “Fostering social development and social justice through social policies to accelerate progress on the implementation of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and to achieve the overarching goal of poverty eradication”.

The purpose of this space is to create an inclusive dialogue between Civil Society, the United Nations, Member States, and other stakeholders aiming to foster cooperation and to unify behind a common vision of furthering the Sustainable Development Goals and the principles of the Copenhagen Declaration. Forging new leadership is essential to establish a renewed social commitment integrating social, economic, environmental and political justice. At a time of great inequality in the world, the Civil Society Forum is a space where stakeholders are invited to discuss how to accelerate action for a more equitable, just, and sustainable future.

The Forum will feature governmental, service, and lived experiences from all over the world, gathered here to share their successes, challenges, and recommendations for tackling structural barriers, reimagining transformative policies to social justice and highlighting approaches that place people, rights and justice at the center of social development.

Ms. Wenyan Yang is Chief of Global Dialogue for Development Branch in the Division for Inclusive Social Development of UN Department of Economic and Social Affairs. She has extensive experience working on a broad range of sustainable development issues. Her current work focuses on the social dimension of the sustainable development agenda, addressing poverty, inequality and social inclusion to advance the wellbeing of all people through research and policy analysis, and technical support for national capacity development. Ms. Yang leads the team that coordinates substantive support to the UN Commission for Social Development and contributes to the publication World Social Report. She also serves as DESA's Principle Focal Point for Gender. An economist by training, she started her UN career as a macroeconomic policy analyst.

CIVIL SOCIETY DECLARATION 2024

Social Justice - Invest in human capital and ensure the dignity and the wellbeing of individuals and families through transformative social policies and programs.

Economic Justice - Reform existing global financial structures and reaffirm existing commitments to address global economic inequalities based on solidarity.

Environmental Justice - Ensure that all people have equal access to a healthy, safe, and sustainable environment, as well as fair protection from environmental hazards and risks.

Political Justice - Ensure the protection of all human rights, including the right to participate in civil and political life, without discrimination, as well as to equal protection under the law to eradicate poverty.

VOLUNTEERS AND SPONSORS

Every year, the Civil Society Forum receives valuable support from sponsors and volunteers, including those from NGOs, interns, interpreters, and other important colleagues before, during and after the Forum. Our sponsors and volunteers come from every corner of the world and they have a strong interest in working with us and supporting our work.

The NGO Committee for Social Development wishes to acknowledge our sponsors' and volunteers' valuable contribution to the success of this year's Forum. Thank you all for your collaboration and willingness to welcome others into the UN and civil society spaces. We are forever indebted to each and every one of you!
