Tr.  5

1. The fields are all white, the har-vest is near, The reapers all with their sharp sickles appear, To reap down their wheat, and ga-ther in barns, While
2. Come then, O my soul, and think on that day, When all things in nature shall cease and decay; The trumpet shall sound, the an-gels ap-pear To

C.

3. But hear the sad cry a-scen-ding the sky, Of those in distress that have no where to fly; They call for the rocks and moun-tains to fall, Up-
4. 'Twill all be in vain, the mountains must flee, The rocks fly like hailstones, and shall no more be; The earth it shall shake, the seas shall re-tire, And

T.  8

5. Then, O wretched mor-tals, look up and spy. The glorious Redeemer descending the sky, On cha-riots of fire to earth he is bound, With
6. But hear the kind Judge, that great day a-larms, First gather my children all into my arms. That se-ven last plagues be poured out on those, Who've

B.

7. Come hither ye tribes, your sentence re-ceive, No longer my spirit shall strive and be grieved, My judgment is right, my sen-tence is just, Come
8. O! sin-ners take thought, and seek ye the Lord, I have not been jesting, it is Christ's own word, That those who've done good in glory shall stand, While
9. So fare-well, I leave you, pon-dering your way, The Lord seal instruction to what I now say, Your souls to God's throne be poured out in prayer. That
