1. thorn, The pleasant and forlorn, All declare God is there; In meadows dressed in green, There he's seen.
2. roar, And beat upon the shore, And all praise, in their ways, The God that ne'er de-clines His de-signs.

C.

3.-pears, His awful name declares: See them fly through the sky, And join the solemn sound All a-round.
4. glade. Nor let me be a-fraid, Though I dwell in the hill, Where nature's works declare God is there.

T.

5. grace; And Moses sang his praise, See him rise near the skies: And view old Canaan's ground All a-round.
6. his, As faith the wit-nes-ses: See them shine all di-vine. While Olive's Mount is blest With the rest.

B.

7. die; Hark! hear the Savior cry, Mountains quake, heavens shake, Christ called to heaven's host, Left their coast.
8. dwell; Hark! hear them sing and tell Of their Lord, with accord, And join in Mo-ses' song, Heart and tongue.
9. sing, While hills and valleys ring; Echoes fly through the sky, And hea-ven hears the sound From the ground.

A folk hymn (Jackson 1953a, no. 142), based on a 17th-century ballad, Captain Kidd. Originally published by Jeremiah Ingalls in 1805, titled Honor to the Hills, in D minor for three voices, from folk sources. Considerably revised in this edition; this revision forms the basis for the three-voice Captain Kidd in Southern Harmony (1835), p. 50.
